Santa Fe, NM - New Mexico Film Office Director Amber Dodson announced today that the Max Original/Warner Bros. Television series “Duster” has begun filming around Albuquerque, Moriarty, Belen, Gallup, Sandia Pueblo, and Laguna Pueblo areas.

The production will employ over 4,000 New Mexicans – approximately 4,000 as background talent, 350 resident crew members, and 50 principal actors.

“Duster” is a crime drama set in 1972 where the first Black female FBI agent ventures to the Southwest and recruits a gutsy getaway driver in a bold effort to take down a growing crime syndicate.
