New Mexico Film Office Announces Creation of Interactive Digital Media Production Exploring the Human Brain

Santa Fe, NM - Amber Dodson, the New Mexico State Film Office Director, announced today that the production of an interactive media presentation exploring the human brain will take place through November in Corrales.

Produced by Robert Demsey, the “Brain Odyssey” project will include an interactive media projection allowing visitors of the Copernicus Science Centre in Warsaw, Poland to interact and learn about various biological functions through a 3D human brain model.

The creation of the exhibit will employ approximately 5 New Mexico crew members.
