New Mexico Film Office Announces Short Film "Two in the Morning" Filmed in New Mexico

Santa Fe, NM—New Mexico Film Office Director Amber Dodson announced today that the short film, "Two in the Morning," has wrapped filming in Albuquerque.

Directed by A.Z. Ocoza ("Shiny Little Objects") and produced by Isabella Frasco ("The Fall of the Lich King"), the film follows a young couple after their first night together as they discuss whether to enter a new relationship or keep repeating their past mistakes.

"If it weren't for the New Mexico film tax credit, this project may not have been possible to produce," Ocoza stated.

The production employs approximately 12 New Mexico crew members, 4 New Mexico principal actors, and 2 New Mexico background talent.
